Optimizing Chronic Kidney Disease Outcomes Across the Life Stages

A conference for pediatric and adult nephrologists, transplant specialists, critical care physicians, onco-nephrologists, nurses, residents, students, fellows and other health care professionals with an interest in kidney disease.

Description & Objectives

Health care professionals are dedicated to achieving the best outcomes for patients with chronic kidney disease (CKD) resulting from a variety of causes, congenital or acquired. One of the major challenges of managing children and young adults with CKD is to retard the progression of renal disease while optimizing growth, neurocognitive and physical development, and social adjustment.

This conference will explore a multidisciplinary team approach to appropriate management of CKD across life stages and prevention of kidney injury in vulnerable subjects.

By the conclusion of this program, attendees should be able to:

- Understand the life course of CKD and its co-morbidities
- Recognize the long-term kidney outcomes of nephron deficit and modifiable factors that may retard the progression of renal disease
- Apply evidence based medicine to optimize mineral metabolism to promote growth and prevent bone and vascular disease
- Recognize the genetic variants, natural selection and progression of CKD
- Identify the molecular mechanisms that contribute to renal injury and their importance in understanding and potentially preventing renal disease
- Apply evidence-based medicine for medical interventions
- Explain how AKI can result in CKD
- Discuss the relationship of CKD and cancer
- Apply best practices to manage renal transplantation in the young so as to improve long term allograft survival
- Recognize the importance of the entire health care team as children with CKD transition to adult care
